

Why Not Have A Green And Rosy Future

It goes without saying that environmentally friendly issues have become an universal discussion and it has been emphasized severely nowadays. Unfortunately, the authorities concerned and media try their best to shed light on the importance of this worldwide issue. To my greatest sorrow, it seems that a majority of the public are still incapable of paying more attention to these crucial problem which should be fully noticed, having no awareness to the disaster which could be near at hand, imaging they can still lead a life without fear forever.

There is no denying that mankind must be the most greedy creature in the world. If we date back to the beginning of history, from the first existence of human to the modern life we are leading today, it is not difficult at all to find that human keep waging war on the mother of the earth. We spare no effort to overcome the obstacles from our daily life, coming up with a large quantity of brilliant ideas to make our life much easier. We end up even trying to do harm to our environment, taking advantage on everything we can make good use of. According to a old and household story, there is a silly old man gathering his family, taking action to move the mountain lying in front of his house. We might as well can say that it is a story with a moral, teaching us. It is valuable to be patient and have better stick to our goal. On the other hand, it also shows that mankind always be eager to struggle with the environment bravely. Moreover, it is possible that the more desire human have, them ore likely we will do harm to our environment.

With the approach of the technology, scientists start to elaborate on the truth that how worse the situation became. Take all the people by surprise, we always take all the natural resources for granted, having no idea what have we done for many centuries. Most importantly, there is no way to wash away our sin or crying for mercy. Therefore, people star making our effort to protect our environment, sparing no effort to raise public awareness of this critical issues.

For example, architects make “Green Building” a great hit for architecture design. Trying to create a new system for decline the electricity or water used in the building. Additionally, those materials could be recycled and even returned to the environment, posing no threat to our lovely planet. Much to my happiness, government and media take methods to hold plenty of great and valuable advertising and campaign and spreading green issue to everybody, with and eye to making people understand the importance of environmentally friendly.

All in all, the rescue and the protection of our planet should never be stopped or ignored. All of the people should get involved it is our obligation to give our offspring a wonderful world for them to enjoy their life. “ as you bake, so shall you eat” , well goes and old saying. It is our responsibility to treasure our land where we are standing at. Once we give the environmentally-friendly issues a cold shoulder or keep taking advantages of our world to our heart content, we will surely face the reality and be regret forever.
