

Save Our Earth

Nowadays, environment protection has become a significant issue because of global warming. There are more and more abnormal natural phenomenon occurred around the world. Besides, since we human beings overuse minerals and other natural resources, the whole world is in jeopardy. Therefore, it is time for both scientists and government officials to cooperate to come up with practical proposals to improve this awful situation. They have to solve this trouble some difficulty not only for us but also for our future generation.

So far, they have proposed tons of policies, unfortunately, they are all ineffective. I think the crux of matter is that government officials don't comet us. Laziness is human nature. If we aren't under a great deal of pressure, we won't face the music in all seriousness. Thus, government should address several speeches and broadcast terrifying document to heighten public awareness. They need to tell their citizens that the end of the world is possible if they don't take actions quickly. We citizens can't just rely on the effort of scientists and government officials. We have to do whatever we can to make the earth better.

So , how can we do to make our environment better? Start from our daily life. First, plant trees as many as possible since trees can absorb carbon dioxide. It's a good approach to reduce pollution. Secondly, set air-conditioning at 28 degree. Because of hot weather, a lot of department stores and shops set the temperature below 25 degree in order to attract customer. However, it's luxurious! Sometimes, there are only few people in spacious areas. If we can cut down the use of electricity, we can emit less carbon dioxide. Third, take public transportation instead of riding scooters and driving cars. In Taipei, it's more convenient to take the MRT and buses during rush hours. Fourth, recycle paper, bottles and cans. As long as we make use of the above materials, they can transform from useless garbage to brand--new items. Most important of all, don't buy anything on impulse. It's common for women to buy worthless products because they are quite cheap. Soon they regret and throw away thing they bought. We waste too much resources unconsciously. Once we run out of resources, we will be in poor quality of life.

Environmental problems affects not only our inhabits but also our economic development. It's an important topic that we should take measures immediately. Although we hum beings have already damaged our mother earth over pas few year, it's not too late for us to salvage it. From this moment on, try and do your best. I believe that with the help of all of us, we can keep our earth from deteriorating.
