

Have discreet fun

Having fun without planning might be a dream in our mind since we don't need to think too much or consider an aspect of situations before. We might admire the forthright and sincere attitude holds by someone who seems so romantic and naturally to while away his leisure time. However, life doesn't so romantic like that, we couldn't do everything we want without some degrees of planning, or we'll likely to facing some problems out of blue like a traffic jam or bad weather.

There's an experience happened on me that once when I had free time, I went outside without thinking twice and only bring my cell phone with me. At first, I just want to walk around and find something to do. But soon I found that I can't do nothing but walking. I have no money that I couldn't take bus or MRT to anywhere I want to go, neither can I buy something to eat. Just at that time when I felt boring and hungry, it rains cats and dogs suddenly. Needless to say, it is my bad ending. After this terrible memory, I always plan for my free time activities. At least, I'll think about where to go and care about the weather conditions.

I would sometimes imagine the moments that I'm lying on a trunk, musing on something, instead of a complete and perfect plan to have fun. But it is somewhat difficult since I must care about external factors. Planning free-time activities might prevent us from the possibility of bad consequence. Just making some arrange and we could easily have a discreet fun. That will be a proper way to while away my free time.
