

Schedule in Advance or Just do it

There are a myriad of activities you can engage in when you have leisure time. Some people prefer to planning and arranging activities gingerly, but others choose to play randomly and enjoy themselves. I think both all have their merits. For plotting cautiously, you may have certain itinerary and you should observe it. When you finish all, you achieve your goal. I consider through this way, you may not lose your direction, wander around, and can brighten your life by participant in some meaningful activities. For example, you can go to some organizations and help the elderly, children, and animals there.

For casually enjoying, I think you can do anything you would like to do. No plans, no limitation. Everything is under your control, what your choice is up to you. You may not be urgent to complete what you have planned. The time is endless for you to take advantage of. Every hour, every minute, every second belongs to you. Nobody can confine you and disturb you.

From my perspective, I love the latter one the most. The reason why I prefer it is that I can do anything I want to do. What I want to do depends on my mood and the weather. If it rains outside, I only can do indoor activities. If it is sunny, I have more options to choose from. When it's rainy, I play table tennis, watch TV, read English novels and so on. Adversely, I can go out with my family experience the beauty of nature. We often go mountain climbing in the nearby mountains. It's intriguing that the birds, insects there even get acquainted with us because we often visit there!

The most impressive experience is that we went mountain climbing as usual but there were something happened suddenly and interestingly. When we tool a rest in our secret base, there were something caused little noise. No one dared to get close to it, so I volunteered to explore. Everyone took care of their breathe and I was so nervous. Gradually and gradually close to that unknown thing, sneaking into that small place and saw. It's just a little bird which was terribly wounded. We bandaged it as soon as possible and found something for it to eat. We all loved it because of its loveliness and tenderness. From then on, I went there every day and took care of him. One month passed, he was completely recovered, so we had to send him back to the natural world. We were all sad about his leaving, especially me. I said many words for him and found out where he nestled and climbed up the tree and left. I still remembered I and miss him dearly, so sometimes I found a tree and climbed up, observing the sky and clouds alone.

Planning carefully and playing freely both have their strengths. What you decide counts on yourself. All I can say is enjoy your life and experience it without any hesitation.
